WISE AND OTHERWISE.

To withhold praise lest it should make its object conceited is as dishonest as to withhold payment of a Just debt lest the creditor should spend the money badly.

It is useless to declare that all men are born free if you deny that they are born good. Guarantee a man's goodness, and his liberty will take care of itself.

Virtue consists, not in abstaining from vice, but in not desiring it. G.B.S.

OPPORTUNITY LOST

SUPPOSE YOU WERE READING a beautiful and highly interesting story, and along about the middle of it you suddenly became aware of the fact that several of the most interesting chapters were missing, the most regrettable thing being that the missing chapters are absolutely necessary in order to master the correct understanding of the story, yet lost entirely—how would you feel?

You would most likely feel like those students, who, having advanced to the High School periods, permit themselves to be absent a day or two a week just at a time when continuity of work is essential to the completion of the story of education, not realizing the full importance of these lost chapters (days absent) until the time of graduation is at hand—and the privilege of passing is denied them.

Opportunity lost which can never be recovered. Days lost which can never be recalled. Taking good care of today is the only way to insure a proper start for tomorrow. Tomorrow exists only in the future. It is never here, for when tomorrow arrives it is today. Yesterday is past. Tomorrow may never be, so all that any one can have as a certainty is today.

But because tomorrow may never be does not in any way release us from the responsibility of preparing for the future and we repeat that there is but one way to prepare for tomorrow—make every minute count today.

Present day school opportunities offer possibilities such as never before have been within reach of children of the school age and Community would do all in it's power to impress the importance of continued work, not only upon the minds of the students themselves but the parents whose pride in the accomplishments of their children we believe must be paramount.

Avoidable absences are depressing and demoralizing in their effect. They not only have a tendency to create a careless, indifferent attitude toward school work, but are very often responsible for the cultivation of habits—cigarettes, profanity, late hours at night, and possibly other indulgences which cannot fail to react disastrously on the work of school studies, making the student inattentive to the efforts of the faculty to impart knowledge intended to benefit.

Community believes in temperance in all things. When one speaks of intemperance the thought of alcoholic beverages is suggested. But one may be intemperate in eating, talking, working, swearing, fault-finding, smoking, etc., and in any of them one may become a slave to habit. It is claimed by many that there is no physical harm in smoking. But when a man, young or old, has become so addicted to the use of tobacco that he cannot attend a church service, a business meeting, a dance or a social gathering of any kind without having to be excused every 15 or 20 minutes while he goes out to smoke a cigarette, he has so far lost control of the powers directing his own life activities that he is a slave to the habit—in fact, the habit is his absolute master beyond question.

Then, too, there is the possibility of weakening character, on the high standard of which may depend the filling of some high position of trust in the life that may follow after the school has been successfully passed and the work of business or professional engagement is taken up. There is also danger of reflecting adversely upon the parents' responsibility in aiding the schools to guide their children along lines leading to high standards of living, efficiency and good citizenship.

The world has never known a time of greater opportunity for co-operative work on the part of parents, teachers and pupils, than is at the present time within reach of all who will take advantage of it.

From an earlier date, when the home was regarded as the one responsible agency of education, less than a century has brought the conviction that the child is, in a sense, the ward of the state; and that upon the school as the agent of the state, rests the obligation to see that aside from inherited capacities, the young are taught what they will have need to know, and acquire the habits they will need to practice later in life, and learn how to live in the group.

In a recent address, president Aurelia Reinhardt of Mills College, who will be remembered here as a result of her visit to Ben Lomond last summer where she addressed the congregation of the Presbyterian church, said to the Public Education Society of San Francisco: "You cannot get rid of the job of teaching your own children by building a school and putting a teacher into it." Noting that in the family must be laid, if at all, the foundation of character and that knowledge without character is worse than useless, she admonished the public: "Do not shirk your duties toward your children. Do not forget, that no matter how good the public schools are, you are not going to get over being parents. Instill in your children respect for right authority, obedience to just demands and a rightful rhythm of habit at all times."

And it might have been added, as it was implied, that while these traits may be promoted, they are not initiated, in the schools. In a number of ways modern and social life, not less than the personal life, suffers from flaccid, indifferent and compromising home environment. In no respect is this apologetic regime more apparent than in matters of the sympathetic, but consistent foreseeing training and directive control of the young. In large measure what the school can do is conditioned by what the home has, or has not, done in important particulars. There are signs of much interest of civic and social organizations in the work of the schools, and certain reforms are in evidence.

But rarely do these services touch the home and home conduct toward the young, where the need is greatest. It is good to set and conserve higher ideals in the school; but the great objective to be aimed at is better disposed and more kindly interested fathers and mothers—not as men and women, not as citizens and taxpayers, not as patrons of the school—but as fathers and mothers. And in any characterization of the needed influence of the home, the father is no more to be released from responsibility than the mother.

BELOVED TEACHER GOES TO HER FINAL ROLL-CALL

"None knew her but to love her,
None saw her but to praise."

Our little boys and girls are broken hearted by the death of Mrs. Lavina Hill Porter and all who knew Mrs. Porter's sweet loving personality can but mourn her loss.

Mrs. Porter who was 59 years old and came here from Kansas, has been one of the teachers of Boulder Creek and of the San Lorenzo Valley for a number of years and her efficiency as a teacher, her exceptional ability in art, and her many other exceptionally fine qualities make her loss keenly felt in the community.

Just last Valentine day the children expressed their love for Mrs. Porter, who had been ill for some weeks and out of school. The little folks all sent Valentines and a box of flowers in which each one put a special bouquet accompanied by a little note of love from the giver. It is such little acts as these that express the love of our little children for Mrs. Porter.

Last year Mrs. Porter, then Mrs. Hill, took charge of the drawing class in the Boulder Creek Union High School which gave the school special distinction in art as a result of Mrs. Hill's artistic ability. Mrs. Porter will be greatly missed from the faculty of both the grammar and high schools of the Union District.

Mrs. Porter's two children Virginia and Rowland Hill are seniors in the Boulder Creek Union High School.

Mr. and Mrs. Porter were married after the schools closed in June last year and have since made their home at the Porter ranch, Bear Creek.

Mrs. Porter will be greatly missed in the Christian Science church of which she was a devout and faithful member and the sympathy of the community goes out to all to whom Mrs. Porter was near and dear.

MISS BLACKMORE IS A REAL FIRE FIGHTER

Fires certainly bring to the front heroes and heroines who otherwise would remain unknown to some of us.

Miss Laura Blackmore proved her self to be of the real heroine caliber when single handed she crawled into the attic at H. L. Middleton's Villa and fought and put out the fire which otherwise would have burned Mr. Middleton's beautiful home.

The fire's origin is unknown. It started near the flue in the attic and had gained considerable headway before it was discovered. The alarm was given through Dr. Hoag's home which can be reached by phone any time of night by direct wire.

Mr. H. L. Middleton who is still very ill, was not carried out of the Villa as Miss Blackmore, the nurse said to wait until she gave the word, but as she conquered the flames in the attic Mr. Middleton did not have to be disturbed.

IMPROVEMENT CLUB MEETS

The weekly meeting of the Boulder Creek Improvement Club Tuesday evening, was presided over by vice chairman George Cress. No business of importance was presented and the meeting was cut short.

Our new Constitution and By Laws will probably be ready for consideration of the club by next meeting. You all should watch the Bulletin Board at the postoffice for all announcements of events pertaining to the club's activities.

The Secretary wishes to ask that if possible all dues be paid to the Secretary direct as it facilitates the proper keeping of her books. Dues can be put into an envelope and mailed through the postoffice to Mrs. W. Woodard. It is always best to register any money so mailed so that in case of loss or error there will be the receipt to show for the transaction.

The next meeting of the club, Tuesday, April 4th will be held in the Library as usual but at 8 o'clock p. m. instead of 7.30, for this one night only.

RECEPTION FOR MRS. DORR

Last Wed. afternoon Mrs. S. J. Dorr Pres. Emeritus of the State W. C. T. U. gave a most interesting talk to a goodly number in the Library.

The theme of her address, was better understanding and enforcement of the 18th amendment, and in the interest of the Wright amendment. California and one other state of the Union are the only ones that have not backed up the constitution, by adequate enforcement measures.

The local W. C. T. U. served dainty refreshments after the meeting, and a social hour was enjoyed.

Mrs. Dorr will speak in the Methodist Church Sunday Eve. at 7.30 for which time the choir is preparing excellent music.

OBITUARY

Mr Cowen, the aged gentleman who has resided at the home of Mr M E Lillie for some weeks, was moved to the home of Mrs Gibbs. He had been gradually failing during the past week and passed away at 3 A M Tuesday. The body was taken to Santa Cruz Tuesday and funeral arrangements will be in charge of friends there. It is understood that Mr Cowen leaves a son in Canada. Also a nephew, a Mr Evans in Santa Cruz. Mr Cowen was 84 years old.

CRUELTY

LADIES AID CONCERT

FINE MUSICAL TREAT

Friday evening Foresters Hall was packed to its capacity to attend the concert given as a benefit for the Ladies Aid of the M. E. Church. Sel-dom has the public had the opportunity to hear a better concert presented by home talent; all those participating in the program were artists and the responsive listeners disproves the old saying that talent is not appreciated in its own country.

The Violinist, Henry Hartman who has just returned home from a year of concert work in Chicago, New York and other large cities, is dear to the people of Boulder Creek. We loved his violin playing before the big outside world called him to the stage. We bid him thrice welcome home when he favors us with his violin interpretations. It was a rare treat to hear Mr. Hartman play.

Mrs. Geo. L. Gordon's piano solos were beautiful and highly appreciated.

Miss Harris delighted the audience with her readings. She responded to her encore as she ought to with "Otto's auto" which was very pleasing.

Mr. Gerald Gardiner's sweet tenor voice was a delight to all present.

Mr. Colburn who directed the entertainment, gave a group of songs, and together with Mr. Gardiner several duets which were especially good.

The program was given as follows:

Songs, Mr. Colburn: a. Pilgrim's Song, Chaikowsky. b. The Gypsy, Weidig. c. One Fleeting Hour, Dorothy Lee. Violin obligato by Mr. Hartman.

Piano, Mrs. Geo. L. Gordon: a. Polonaise Militaire, F. Chopin. b. To Spring, Edward Grieg.

Readings, Miss Pearl Harris: a. Old Aunt Mary's, James Whitcomb Riley. b. Some Day, John Larkin.

Violin, Mr. Henry Hartman: a. Gypsy Dance, Nachez. b. Souvenir, Drdla.

Songs, Mr. Gerald Gardiner: a. Thou art near me, Margarita, Meyer-Helmund. b. Only once more, Moir. c. Cradle Song, Brahms.

Readings, Miss Harris: a. The Land of Beginning Again, Louise F. Tarkington. b. The Usual way, Anon.

Violin, Mr. Hartman: a. Ziegeunerweisen, Sarasate. b. Valse Bluetie, Drigo.

Vocal duets, Messrs Gardiner and Colburn: a. I live and love thee, Campana. b. When the wind bloweth in from the sea. c. Wanderer's night song, Rubenstein.

The decorations of Japanese quince gave a very spring-like setting to the musical.

The concert besides being very enjoyable was very profitable netting some $45.00 for which the ladies say "Thank you."

Mrs. Lindsay the County Recorder showed her generous heart by sending the ladies a five dollar check. We are sorry Mrs. Lindsay could not attend the concert and we also say "Many thanks for the check."

"THE BRIDGE BUILDER"

An old man, traveling a lone highway,
Came at the evening cold and gray,
To a chasm deep and wide.
The old man crossed in a twilight dim,
For the sullen stream held no fear for him,

For he turned when he reached the other side,
And builded a bridge to span the tide.

"Old man," cried a fellow pilgrim near;
"You are wasting your strength with building here.

Your journey will end with the ending day
And you never again will pass this way.

You have crossed the chasm deep and wide
Why build a bridge at eventide?"

And the builder raised his old gray head,
"Good friend, on the path I have come," he said,

"There followeth after me today
A youth whose feet will pass this way.

This stream which has been naught to me,
To that fair-hair boy may a pitfall be.

He, too, must cross in the twilight dim
Good friend, I am building this bridge for him."

Mrs. Cress has been entertaining her sister Mrs. Chet Perry and son Robert, from San Jose. Mr. George Cress Jr., much to his dislike, has been obliged to spend a few good days of weather in bed owing to an attack of measles. A great waste of time, George thinks.

OUR SCHOOL WORK has been greatly broken into by the bad roads, bad weather, the prevalence of colds, influenza and other causes indirectly related to these.

The work in the schools, especially the high school, is very cumulative in its content and any absence, whatever the cause, seriously affects the standing of the individual.

Many of our absences were quite AVOIDABLE. Absences of this type are a positive harm, aside from the loss of continuity, etc., in studies as one of the greatest benefits to be derived from school training is responsibility to the task in hand.

Part of the STATE and COUNTY money for the support of the schools is based, not on the enrollment, but on the ATTENDANCE and so when our attendance falls the funds for the SUPPORT of the SCHOOLS falls also and must be made up in special taxes.

With these things in mind, we ask you, the parents to co-operate with us, the school officers in seeing that our attendance is kept up to the highest average possible for the good of your children and the school, and through them both for the highest interest of the community.
